Wednesday, July 9. 1707.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 2.

From the Camp at Schorndorf, June 16.

THE Marshal de Villars march'd with the Army from Sturgard the 13th Instant, towards Schorndorf, where it was reported the Enemy were intrench'd. He march'd before with a Detachment of Horse and Grenadiers, having sent the Marquis de Fremont to invest Schorndorf. The Marshal de Villars arriv'd there the 14th in the Morning, and the rest of the Army reach'd thither the same Day. As soon as he arriv'd, he summon'd the Governour Lieutenant Colonel Tasty to surrender the Place, threatening otherwise to make him, the Garrison, and Inhabitants, feel the utmost Rigours of War: But the Governour answer'd he would defend himself to the last Extremity. The Burgomasters and some of the Burghers came out and besought him to spare them, because they had no Concern in the Resolution taken by the Governour. He bid them get them in again, and told them that the Town not being in a Condition to stop a Royal Army, he would not answer for what might happen. At the same Time he gave Order for Fascines to be brought, to make a Lodgement within 30 Paces of the Duch: The Regiment of Champagne was commanded to open the Trenches, and Orders were given for raising the Batteries. The Besieged made a great Fire that Day and the Night following: But the 15th they sent out Deputies to offer to capitulate. It was granted by the Capitulation, that the Garrison consisting of about 500 Men, should march out with their Arms and Baggage, and be conducted to their Army; all other Conditions were refus'd them. In the Place were found 2 Mortars, 54 Pieces of Cannon, of which 12 brass; Cloaths for the Soldiers, a good Number of Arms, and Magazines of Ammunition and Provisions. The Count de Broglio whom the Marshal de Villars had sent with 1500 Horse to Franconia, has rejoyn'd him, and brought with him several Hostages for the Contributions which he has seized in that Country: The Marquis d'Imecourt continues on the other side of the Danube, where he is levying Contributions.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 9.

From the Camp at Gemund, June 24. The 20th Instant the Marshal de Villars was inform'd that the Enemy had sent 3000 Men commanded by General Janus, to intrench themselves near Lorch in a narrow Pass, designing to come afterwards and encamp there with their Army. Upon this Advice, he resolv'd to march and attack them before they had Time to fortify themselves there: But knowing that the People of the Country gave the Enemy Notice of all the Motions of the Army, he took the following Precautions to keep this from their Knowledge. He kept his Design to himself, and in the Evening gave strict Charge that no Person should be suffer'd to go out of the Camp on any Pretence whatever. The 21st the better to deceive the Enemy's Parties, who retir'd when they saw the Tents kept standing at 9 in the Morning, he forbore till 10 a Clock to command out 4 Brigades of Foot, 2 Regiments of Dragoons, and 2 Brigades of Horse. He sent M. de Verseil before, with the Hussars that he commands, 200 Horse, and 4 Companies of Grenadiers, and order'd him when he came near the Enemy to post himself as if he were only a Guard to some Foragers; which M. de Verseil did accordingly. The Marshal coming up, took some Time to dispose his Troops for the Attack, and then the Action begun. General Janus made a very brave Resistance, but his Troops were broken and pursued almost to Gemund. The Enemy had above 600 Men kill'd, and as many taken Prisoners, among the latter General Janus and 27 Officers. The 22d the Marshal de Villars having Intelligence that the Enemy continued in their Camp near Gemund, resolv'd to fight them. He sent Order to the Marquis de Hautefort, to bring up the Army which he had left at Schorndorf, and in the mean time he march'd with the Troops that the Day before had forc'd the Intrenchments of Lorch. Being advanc'd near to the Enemy, M. de Verseil intirely defeated an advanc'd Guard of 60 Horse posted under the Walls of the Imperial City of Gemund, which immediately open'd its Gates. While the Marquis de Hautefort was bringing up the Army, which did not arrive till the Close of the Evening, the Marshal de Villars took a View of the Enemy's Camp, the Front and Flanks of which were of such difficult Access that it could only be attack'd in the Rear; but as soon as Day appear'd, he perceiv'd the Enemy's Army had decamp'd. He put himself at the Head of the greatest Part of the Horse, to endeavour to fall upon their Rearguard. The Marquis de la Valiere, and the Chevaliers de Broglio and de Peleux, charg'd them at the Head of the foremost Troops, defeated them, and pursued them to their Army. The Enemy had 300 of their Men kill'd or taken in that Action: Among the Prisoners are a Lieutenant Colonel, 5 Captains of Horse, and several subaltern Officers. On both these Occasions, of the King's Troops only one Captain of Dragoons was wounded dangerously, a Captain of Hussars kill'd, and about 40 Horse or Dragoons kill'd or wounded. The Marquis d'Imecourt is return'd from the other side of the Danube, with Hostages for Contributions.

Paris, July 9. Letters written the 30th of last Month from the Camp of Winada, 2 Leagues from Schorndorf, advise, that the Marshal de Villars having Intelligence that the Enemy wanting Provisions, were marching behind the Mountains towards Hailbron, to post themselves under Philipsbourg, took a Resolution to follow them with all possible Diligence, and endeavour to engage them. He sent the Count de Broglio to sieze Lauffen, a small Town on the Neckar, 2 Leagues above Hailbron. He found there some of the Enemy's Troops, against whom he detach'd a Captain of the Regiment of Belisle with 150 Dragoons, who intirely defeated them. A Lieutenant Colonel that commanded them was kill'd, and Possession was taken of the Post of Lauffen.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated July 8.

Frankfort, July 3. The 21st past the Marshal de Villars attack'd General Janus, who was posted near Lorch with 2000 Men, most Horse and Hussars: He defended himself with great Bravery, but was overpower'd by the Enemy's Numbers, and was himself taken Prisoner. 'Tis reckon'd we lost about 1000 Men, the Prisoners included; and that the Enemy's Loss was as great. The Marshal de Villars advancing afterwards with his whole Army to attack ours, the Margrave of Bareith has thought fit to retire by the Way of Hailbron towards Philipsbourg, to joyn the Troops that are on the Rhine.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 12.

From the Imperial Camp at Reinhausen, July 5. The 25th past the Army rested at Neuenheim near Elvangel, having undergone great Fatigues in their March thither from the Neighbourhood of Gemund. It being resolv'd in a great Council of War to march towards Hailbron, we encamp'd the 26th at Krailsheim, where we had Advice that the Enemy's Army was at Bagen. The 27th we advanc'd to West-nach;

Arch; the same Day a Party of our Hussars beat a Detachment of French, and brought in 30 Hussars. The 28th we continued our March by Gingen, and came to Bresfeldt. The same Day the Duke of Wirtemberg, having been bruised by his Horse's falling with him, went away for the Baths; and the Prince of Hohenzollern Field-Marshal arriv'd at the Camp. We had Intelligence that the Enemy continued encamp'd at Bargaen. The 29th the Army pass'd the Neckar near Hailbron, and encamp'd within a Quarter of a League of Southeim. The same Day we had Intelligence, that some Parties of the Enemy had appear'd near Nordlingen, but that the Gros of their Army was advanc'd to Brackenheim; and that the Marshal de Villars had caus'd the Post of Lauffen to be secur'd, in Order to pass the Neckar there. The 30th it was resolv'd in a great Council of War to march towards Philipsbourg; and our Army after a long and toilsome March, that they might get before the Enemy, arriv'd at Sintzheim. The 1st Instant we continued our March to Langenbruch. At Break of Day Count Mercy had been detach'd with 1000 Horse and all the Hussars, to get Intelligence of the Enemy; and he gave an Account, that they encamp'd the 30th at Morbach, and were advanc'd to Pfortheim. The 2d our Army came and encamp'd between Waeghausel and Oberhausen near Philipsbourg. The 3d C. Mercy rejoyn'd us. The same day we receiv'd Advice, that the Marshal de Villars had sent back 8000 Men to Alsace. The 4th we receiv'd an Express from Baron Hoffman Governour of Landau, with the Confirmation of that News; and that the Marquis de Vivans was arriv'd with that Detachment in the Lines of Laurerbourg. To Day we have Intelligence, that the Marshal de Villars has his Quarters at Dourlach, and that his Army is encamp'd at Crenzigen. Upon this Advice, a Council of War was held by our Generals at Philipsbourg, in which it was resolv'd our Army should file to a strong Camp; accordingly our Foot have begun to march towards Reinhausen, and the Horse towards Losheim; where we shall have the Rhine in our Rear, a great Morass in Front, and the only Avenue to our Camp will be cover'd by Philipsbourg. A Bridge of Boats is order'd to be laid for us over the Rhine, near Losheim, within half a League of Spire.
